The heap of garbage and C&D waste that existed till June 2022, was transformed into a lush green eco-friendly asset.

🚩 This exercise is a part of Yamuna restoration and rejuvenation program by Delhi Development Authority (DDA), which aims at enhancing the ecological character of the floodplains and to make them accessible to public, by providing nature friendly, breathable green spaces on the river bank to the people of Delhi. A people close to the river will identify with the Yamuna and own it.

🚩 Project Baansera is also an example of mitigating climate change in urban areas.

🚩 This project named "Baansera" (Abode of Bamboos) has been developed as a unique, bamboo-themed urban green space along the river that also aims at promoting the use of bamboo as a flora alternative that supports the environment by transmitting 30 per cent more oxygen and provides raw material for the cottage and village industry.

🚩 More than 30,000 bamboo plants of 15 varieties have been planted at Baansera. In addition, several species of riverine grasses and native trees have been planted along the edge of the river. Solar lights that dim around midnight are being installed in the floodplains. Three large water bodies (ponds) have been created and filled with treated water from nearby sewage treatment plants that have enhanced the aesthetics of the area. Kaccha pathways have been developed and bamboo fencing has been erected along the periphery of the green area to keep it completely eco-friendly.

🚩 The rear part of the complex towards the eastern side provides splendid panoramic views of the Yamuna, while one can see Humayun's tomb on its western side. An intermediate terrace with planting beds for seasonal plantation arranged in a radial pattern has been created as a treat to the eyes.

🚩 A seating shelter has been provided such that it seems emerging from the seasonal flower beds. A lush green deck measuring 250 x 150 meters has been created that includes a 20 x 20 m size performance area made of red sandstone.

🚩 DDA is committed towards providing green space in the national capital and ease of living to the people of Delhi and many such events would take place in the future.
